INTRODUCTION:

Foresters and other natural resource professionals, with their understanding of the interaction of natural systems with man, are uniquely valuable as resource people to other professionals and those lay persons who have an interest in the management and use of the forest resource.

This directory is designed to provide a listing that is available to other professionals; teachers; legislators; local, county and regional planning groups; and civic and other groups.

The directory is divided into two listings. The first being an alphabetical order “last name” listing. This listing includes the individual’s name, a mailing address, and the individual’s professional category. Where appropriate, the following phone numbers may be listed: Home, Business, Mobile, FAX. There may also be an e-mail address listed. Also listed is the page number of the business, agency, or organization with which the individual is affiliated.

The second section is the alphabetical listing of businesses, agencies and organizations. There are three lines for corporate/organization information, with these three lines in bold print, each line in smaller type (see the example below).

West Virginia University
Division of Forestry
Appalachian Hardwood Center

Organization Name
Division
Subdivision

Following will be the address on one line, phone/FAX numbers on the next line, and if available, lines for web site address and/or email address. These lines are not bold print. All of this organizational information is centered on the page.

Below the organization information are listed alphabetically the people affiliated with the organization, with their job title, work phone, and extension if necessary.

DIRECTORY UPDATES

This printed directory is updated and reprinted periodically, approximately on a two-year cycle. It will also be available on the Appalachian Hardwood Center web site, in Adobe Acrobat .pdf file format, for viewing or downloading. These .pdf files will be updated more frequently, depending on the number of changes and/or corrections. The web site searchable listings will be updated more frequently than the .pdf files.

Changes, additions, and deletions will be entered in the database as they are received. Check the AHC web site for materials that will assist in providing accurate information at:
