

Mauet Quiz

Remember, the quiz is to be your individual work. No collaboration with anyone please.

You may respond to this quiz in one of two ways. First, you may print the quiz, write in your answers and mail or fax the results to me. Second, you may download the quiz, fill it in, and e-mail me the result. If you use the e-mail option, rename your quiz with the first initial of your first name and your last name before you send it, for example: mmcdiarmid.pdf. The deadline is Monday, July 21. Good luck.

Name: _____

1. In the O'Neill case, may the prosecution move for a directed verdict at the end of the defense case? Yes _____ No _____

2. Mauet suggests that which of the following methods produce the most accurate information about jury attitudes?

- _____ Questions asked in open court
- _____ Questions asked privately in the judge's chambers
- _____ Questions asked through written questionnaires

3. Is it permissible to use an exhibit during opening statement? Yes _____ No _____
If yes, give an example: _____

4. What rule of evidence permits the use of leading questions for transitions on direct?

5. How does Mauet suggest laying the foundation for an exhibit to which the opponent seriously objects so that the jury is not tainted?

6. According to Mauet what are the three "c"s of impeachment with a prior inconsistent statement?

7. Why should you refuse to accept a stipulation to your expert's credentials?

8. Mauet notes that inexperienced trial lawyers spend too much time in closing discussing undisputed facts. He suggests that more time should be spent discussing what sorts of disputed facts instead?

9. What does Mauet call a compressed version of the elements matrix?
